Gordon

Tax Talk With U.S. Promised

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Gordon said Friday the government plans to discuss with Washington Canada's "serious worries" about President Kennedy's proposed new tax on American purchases of securities from Canada and 21 other countries.

In a cautious statement, he told the Commons the situation resulting from the president's announcement Thursday of his tax proposal is "a little delicate."

But he added firmly: "I do not think it is too delicate. I think we will get out of it all right."

GOOD POSITION

Later he added: "The government is in an excellent position to negotiate with the United States."

Mr. Gordon entered the debate amid charges by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker that his June 13 budget measures may have provided a lead to the drastic Kennedy proposal.

Mr. Diefenbaker, stating the new U.S. tax would affect Canada "to a tremendous degree," steered short of saying it resulted from the budget.

"What happened yesterday was an understandable consequence of the government's action in this budget . . . It gave

Survivor of Air Crash Flown Out by RCAF

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Gilbert Foster of Littleton, Colo., only survivor in the crash last Saturday of a private plane 300 miles north of here, was brought to Prince Albert Friday night.

Mr. Foster was pilot of a Cessna 310 aircraft that crashed landed on Lac Haultain. Killed were his three passengers, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Miller of Grand by, Colo., and Ed Quick of Aurora, Colo.

Their bodies were brought to Prince Albert by the same RCAF Albatross aircraft that carried Mr. Foster to the northern Saskatchewan city.

GOOD CONDITION

RCMP said Mr. Foster appeared in good condition and was not admitted to hospital. However, he had said he was "bused" from his ordeal and would not talk to reporters at least until Sunday.

Mr. Foster told RCMP his passengers survived the crash landing but drowned as they were swimming to a nearby shore.

He said he had been forced to land with the wheels of his aircraft retracted. The craft was not pontoon equipped.

He did not say why he had been forced to land.

A coroner will rule Monday whether an inquest is necessary.

Safest way to watch—and probably the way that will give the best view of the rare phenomenon—is on television.

The eclipse will be shown over Channels 2 and 6 at 2:20 p.m., and over Channels 7 and 12 at 3 p.m.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Two 18-year-old boys came before juvenile court Friday, charged with breaking into a grocery store and stealing five boxes of chocolate laxative, thinking it was candy.

Warncke said that should be punishment enough and put them on probation.

Pull-Out in 1960 Crippled Economy

CHINA ADMITS SOVIET BLOW

TOKYO (UPI) — Red China today couped a new blast at Russian communists with the admission that the withdrawal of Soviet technicians in 1960 dealt a body blow to China's economy and scientific research.

A statement by the central committee of the Chinese Communist party also said that Chinese leader Mao-Tse-tung has denied that nuclear war would mean the end of civilization. The statement, together with an editor's note in the Peking People's Daily, was broadcast by the Communist New China News Agency and monitored here.

The broadcast charged Russia scrapped "hundreds" of Sino-Soviet agreements three years ago and "inflicted incalculable difficulties and losses on China's economy, national defence and scientific research."

But there was no specific reference as to whether the pullout of Russian technicians set back Communist China's quest for an atom bomb.

SCRAP CONTENTS

New China said that in July, 1960, "The Soviet side suddenly notified China of its decision to withdraw all the 1,300 and more Soviet experts in China within a month, to scrap the hundreds of agreements and contracts it had signed and to discontinue supplies of many important items of equipment and materials."

In one of Red China's sharpest attacks on Russia to date, the broadcast charged that the Russian Communist party was trying to "poison" people's minds by saying Red China would have not scrupled about spreading Communism through nuclear war.

The Chinese said China does not want nuclear war but is not afraid of it.

The broadcast, quoting the editor's note, said there were

Challenge to China

Take Dispute To People —Khrushchev

MOSCOW (AP)—Sputtering with rage over Red China's challenge to his leadership of the Communist camp, Premier Khrushchev dared Peking's leaders Friday to take their ideological dispute to the people.

"I declare to those who would like to overthrow us: I challenge you, gentlemen, comrades, let's pick out any plant or any collective farm," he said.

FOLITE PEOPLE

"And you may rest assured, you won't need armor or a pillow for protection . . . our people are polite here. They'll listen to you and say: 'Get out.'"

The Soviet premier flung down the challenge in an extemporaneous outburst at a Kremlin rally honoring visiting Hungarian Premier Janos Kadar.

FLAY CHINESE

He twice departed from his prepared text to flay his Chinese antagonists, groping for words in obvious vexation.

At one point he spluttered to a halt searching for a word and appealed to the Kremlin Palace of Congresses audience: "Help me out, help me out."

New Tack On Test Proposals

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev, in a proposal to back up a nuclear test ban, called Friday for an East-West non-aggression pact and a system of airfield and railroad inspections to prevent surprise attack.

While his negotiators and American and British representatives sorted out details of a partial test ban, the Soviet leader walked to the podium in the Kremlin's Congress Hall and made a series of proposals that seemed to point to an East-West summit conference.

He agreed the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union are approaching agreement on a nuclear test ban covering everything except underground explosions. He wants underground blasts covered too, he said, but he added that the West insists on inspections and implied those will not be approved.

TRICK NEW TACK

With the test ban he wanted a non-aggression pact, just as he said July 2 in East Berlin, but he clearly opened a new way to negotiations on that by saying:

"We think that the question of the form of the non-aggression pact can be solved without any great difficulties to the mutual satisfaction of both sides. The most important thing is not the form, but the content."

EASE TENSION

"The most important thing is for each side to display willingness to ease tensions and to liquidate the state of the cold war."

Baritone King leads 400 in filling woods with song.

400 Join Singing Safari

It Was One Heart-Lifting Spiritual After Another

By DON GAIN

More than 400 persons, mostly children, made a singing safari into the Hudson's Bay woods near the corner of Henderson and Cedar Hill Cross Roads last night.

The group paused in a wooded glen, and as the sunlight dappled the dusty ground through maples, arbutus and fir, baritone Charles King broke into song.

The sound of music filled the woods as he led the singers in one spiritual after another.

For Children

Organizer of the safari, Mrs. W. W. McGill, former school board chairman, told this reporter the safari was not intended as a religious meeting.

A retired elementary school teacher and Sunday school teacher, Mrs. McGill said she was just interested in children.

"I always have been," she said. She explained that Mr. King, the song leader, was a teacher of creative group singing in high schools all over the United States.

He and his wife, Alice, are visiting the McGills at their home on Mayfair Drive.

Mr. King was singing Water Boy in a pure baritone.

"Already the children have come to me and said, 'Let's do it again,'" Mrs. McGill said.

The baritone changed his song as the reporter made his way back through the dusty woods.

Little Girl Sings

"They just recently returned from a trip to Africa," said Mrs. McGill. "That's why I decided to call this a safari. They adopted two little girls while they were in Liberia."

The girls, Yvonne and Marie, were at the songfest last night. Yvonne sang The Angels Rolled the Stones Away in a loud clear voice. Then she sang a haunting little song in her native Liberian tongue.

Everyone Laughs

Marie, suffering from a cold, sang "Fishers of men" and when her voice cracked, the crowd laughed and so did Marie.

Mrs. King sang Were You There When They Crucified My Lord? in a sweet tremolo. "Come here, I want to show you something," Mrs. McGill told the reporter, leading the way to a nearby vacant lot on Henderson Street. She pointed to a car.

"That lady in the car with my husband is 88 years old. We brought her over from Rose Manor to hear the singing. It's Mrs. Barbara Dams."

Work for Uplift

"We're working for uplift," she went on. "We just want to lift our hearts in true appreciation of the things we enjoy in this lovely country of freedom and plenty."

In the background the crowd was singing How Great Thou Art.

"A lot of things they teach children nowadays are just like so much water off a duck's back," she said. "But something like this they'll remember always."

Just One Thing After Another

LONDON (AP)—A railroad conductor's alarm clock didn't go off Friday and thousands of commuters were late for work in the chain reaction that followed.

The conductor was first scheduled for the 5:43 a.m. train from Wimbledon to West Croydon. When he didn't show up the train was cancelled.

At West Croydon, he was supposed to take over the 6:23 to Victoria. That was cancelled.

At Victoria he was down for the 7:08 back to West Croydon. They called that one off, too.

Then at West Croydon he was assigned to the 7:35 to Holborn and that didn't run either.

The commuters involved got to work on other trains.

FORT NELSON, B.C. (CP)

A rescue team decided Friday night against attempting to dig out a man buried when a truck was hit by a mudslide at a natural gas well 100 miles north of here.

A spokesman said the rescue operation might cause further slides and was too dangerous. A second man was thrown out of the vehicle before it was buried after a dirt road gave way. Names of the two were not released.

French, U.S. Fleets Dodge BB Weapon

PARIS — The French navy audly admitted this week that it is not quite up to the task of taking care of Brigitte Bardot as the U.S. navy was asked to step in in the name of charity.

The National Union of Polio Victims started it all innocently enough with a request to use the French aircraft carrier Foch for a fund-raising party Aug. 2 off the Riviera port of Villefranche. Permission had been granted by Defence Minister Pierre Messmer until he learned that Miss Bardot was to be the feature attraction of the party.

"We promised 'Foch' for a benefit evening, not for the wild night that inevitably transpires around Brigitte Bardot," Messmer ungraciously told the sponsors.

The very presence of Miss Bardot and the excesses which are committed in the vicinity of her personage are strictly incompatible with the military secrecy which governs a large part of the ship," he added.

Gerard Vee, disappointed president of the polio group, then took his case through an intermediary to the U.S. Naval Attaché in Paris, Capt. John Noel, with the hope that one of the carriers of the U.S. Sixth Fleet might be used. Noel appeared ready to risk the impact of Miss Bardot on security but pointed out a possibly more serious obstacle.

"No alcoholic beverages can be served aboard U.S. Navy ships," the captain said, not without a tinge of regret.

Vee, hastily calculating the prospects of luring charitable spenders to a non-alcoholic cocktail party, was even more regretful.

"Still, with the unusual atmosphere, and Miss Bardot, it might succeed," he said.

Capt. Noel was then constrained to add that there is no assurance that the USS Saratoga, the Enterprise or the Constitution—the three carriers presently anchored off Cannes—will be available at the desired time.

The ships of the Sixth Fleet are kept in constant motion and the special assignment of one, even for worthy causes, must be arranged months ahead.

Vee, after a quick check with the British Embassy, disclosed that no Royal Navy carriers are scheduled to be in the Mediterranean at the right date, in preparing a formal request to the U.S. government to cut the red tape.

"It's our only hope," he said.

Buddhists Refuse Peace Overture —'Prefer to Die'

SAIGON (UPI)—Buddhist leaders rejected a peace overture from President Ngo Dinh Diem Friday, promising monks and nuns "prefer to die" rather than suffer religious persecution.

In a letter to the Roman Catholic president, the Buddhists asked the government to release all members of their sect arrested throughout the country in connection with demonstrations protesting government religious policy and to pay indemnities to families of demonstration victims.

WANT ASSURANCES

The government invited Buddhist leaders to meet with an interministerial committee in an effort to solve the politico-religious dispute which has split the country. But the Buddhist leaders said they did not want to enter the talks until they have received further assurances of the government's intentions.

The Buddhists, who form

TOKYO (UPI)—The leader of the Communist Viet Cong, in another move in a current "hate America" campaign, warned the U.S. Friday that the guerrilla fighting in South Viet Nam was the "bloodiest and biggest hot war in the world."

In a broadcast over the clandestine Viet Cong radio, Nguyen Hu Thieu said America was "getting bogged down in an adventurous, stupid and useless war."

WASHINGTON—Bono, the-erjassodrome of Malang, East Java, called at the White House to return the PT 109 tieclasp he took from President Kennedy during a riot of world students. He said, "I felt bad for what I had done," and Kennedy gave him a duplicate clasp.

Park Ends Race Bars Next Month

BALTIMORE (AP)—The owners of Gwynn Oak amusement park agreed Friday night to end segregation at the park beginning Aug. 28, Baltimore County executive Spiro T. Agnew announced.

Agnew announced the verbal agreement as 15 integrationists made plans to renew mass demonstrations at the park today.

About 200 persons were arrested during protest demonstrations at the park July 4 and 7, before a truce was declared while the Baltimore County human relations committee attempted to mediate the dispute.

NEW YORK (AP)—Police arrested 44 more civil rights demonstrators—17 children among them—for blocking the entrance to a state hospital construction site in Brooklyn Thursday and refusing to move.

It was the second mass arrest there this week.

White and Negro pickets carried signs protesting discrimination of building trades unions and demanding more jobs for Negroes and Puerto Ricans.

In Manhattan, Governor Nelson Rockefeller told a press conference—held in a hotel because of a sit-in demonstration in his press room—that New York law well establishes the principle of equal opportunity.

Mayor Robert Wagner, meanwhile, held a closed-door conference at city hall with leaders of several major civil rights groups, a meeting described as "a good first step" in providing more jobs.

Conflicting Views

IN HIS PRESENTATION before the Commons defence committee in Ottawa this week, Canada's chief of air staff, Air Marshal Larry Dunlop, is reported to have praised the Bomarc missile as a "highly reliable and effective" weapon.

His evaluation of the controversial weapon will not only surprise the lay members of the Canadian committee but will also come as somewhat of a shock to the United States department of defence, whose experts apparently remain unaware of the capabilities ascribed the Bomarc by the air marshal, despite the fact that it was fully developed, tested and eventually discarded by them as a near-failure which would contribute little or nothing to the defence of North America.

U.S. Secretary of Defence McNamara himself is on record as saying that its only usefulness is to draw enemy ballistic missile fire.

Indeed, the air marshal's views on a number of matters related to air defence in general and the Bomarc in particular are at strange variance with the opinions held by his Washington counterparts.

For instance, officials of the U.S. department of defence have made no secret of the fact that they are spending most of their time and vast sums of money to develop an effective anti-missile missile. It is their open claim that neither the U.S.A., its allies, nor the U.S.S.R. have yet perfected such a weapon.

In direct contradiction of this, Air Marshal Dunlop has advised the Commons committee that the Bomarc is, in fact, a most efficient anti-missile missile, well able to "knock down" missiles launched from attacking bombers.

Another statement made by the air marshal which may be challenged is that the range of such air-to-ground missiles is only "100 miles or so" and that enemy bombers could not successfully launch them from outside the North American air defence system.

According to the latest official information available to the public the Soviet air force is equipped with air-to-ground missiles or stand-off bombs with a firing range of between 500 and 1,000 miles. On the allied side, the United States now has in service the "Hounddog" missile which can be launched some 500 miles from target, and Britain has the "Blue Streak" which has a range of over 200 miles. This latter weapon is now being improved (since the Skybolt development has been dropped) with the expectation that it will have its operative range increased to nearly 1,000 miles.

Air Marshal Dunlop also states that the Bomarc B has "unique capabilities against both very high and very low level targets, and, of course, at all intermediate levels."

This assessment of the Bomarc's potential is not only at complete odds with the American appraisal of its usefulness, but ignores the limitations of radar tracking upon which the Bomarc depends for its operation. Both the U2 flights over Russia and the penetration of New York's defences by the RAF "V" force last year proved that modern aircraft can still fly above or below any radar screen yet devised.

If Air Marshal Dunlop sticks to his words he will undoubtedly become as much an object of disputation as has the missile he now seeks to defend.

A Job for David

HEALTH MINISTER JUDY LAMARSH'S announcement that old age pensions will not be raised until some time in 1964 has understandably triggered considerable criticism.

Opposition leader John Diefenbaker put into words the consternation occasioned by the minister's statement—a consternation which must be felt on all sides of the House and, indeed, throughout the dominion.

"The old people," he said, "will be thoroughly dismayed by the fact that the $10 increase promised in the election campaign is not going to be received immediately as had been promised."

That the Liberal Party deliberately misled the voters with such a promise during the election cannot be denied. Even Victoria's highly respected Liberal member of parliament, Captain David Groos, used it as a vote-catching gimmick during the election campaign by running a series of advertisements which read:

"David Groos says:

"Liberals will raise Pensions $10.00 per month immediately! The Liberal Party, which introduced the Old Age Pension, is pledged to introduce a national Portable Pension Plan. This will immediately add $10.00 a month on to the Old Age Pension payments."

However, all may not yet be lost. It is quite conceivable that Capt. Groos and other back-benchers of the Liberal Party who undoubtedly relayed the Liberal promise to the electors in good faith may band together to persuade Miss LaMarsh to change her mind.

If this were done it is almost certain that Miss LaMarsh would follow the well-known tradition and now firmly established practice of the new Liberal government of quickly reversing announced policies at the slightest hint of outside pressure.

Over to you, Captain Groos.

MR. PIGEON: Mr. Speaker, I raise a point of privilege. As a member of parliament, I have a right to ask any number of questions I feel appropriate as long as I do so in accordance with standing orders.

Mr. Yvon Dupuis (Parliamentary Secretary to Secretary of State): As a member of parliament you have no right to act as an imbecile.

Mr. Pigeon: I do not have to take orders from anybody.

Mr. Speaker, on a point of privilege, may I be allowed to point out that the parliamentary secretary's remarks are out of order.

Mr. Dupuis: Mr. Speaker, I said that a member of parliament had no right to act as an imbecile. If the hon. member feels the hat fits him, I am very sorry for him but he can wear it.

Mr. Pigeon: Mr. Speaker, again on a point of privilege, I feel that the language used by the hon. member is not in accordance with the traditions of the House and that any hon. member who uses such language is not worthy of sitting in this chamber.

International Commentary

An Orderly Dissolution

By KEN HOLBOYD from London

TWO months of intensive work face the committees set up by the Central Africa Conference at Victoria Falls earlier this month to work out detailed arrangements for the dissolution of the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland.

The conference set December 31 this year as the target date for the dissolution of the federation—conditional on the substantial settlement by then of such important general issues as the apportionment of the federal public debt and other liabilities and assets, and the future of more than 35,000 members of the federal public service.

The aim will be to strike a proper balance between the need for speed and the orderly transfer of federal functions to the individual governments of Northern and Southern Rhodesia and Nyasaland. In drawing up a timetable for the processes of dissolution, the conference asked the committee to complete its work by the middle of September.

In that time, the main committee consisting of officials from the British, federal, and Northern and Southern Rhodesian governments with a British chairman will have to work out detailed arrangements for the reversion of federal government functions to territorial responsibility.

They will also have to recommend solutions for general problems like the future of the federal public servants, members of the armed forces and the judiciary, and also make recommendations about the means for dealing with federal assets and liabilities and the public debt.

This may seem a tall order for the committee but, given a continuation of the goodwill and hard work which was manifest on all sides during the conference itself, the prospects for success seem hopeful.

From the very beginning an atmosphere of co-operation and goodwill and a spirit of give and take were discernible. The Northern Rhodesian delegation, for instance, held strongly to the view that a commission should be set up immediately to take over federal functions and arrange the dissolution.

It became clear, however, that theirs were the only voices in favor of a commission so, in the interest of reaching agreement, they said they would accept the machinery now in being.

The Northern Rhodesian African Nationalist leader, Dr. Kenneth Kaunda, admitted that the Northern Rhodesian delegates had been encouraged by the attitude of the federal prime minister, Sir Roy Welensky, and the leaders of the other delegations, and would therefore not press their demand.

Evidence of the determination on all sides to deal speedily and justly with some of the thornier problems arising from the end of the federation was also quickly forthcoming. All delegates expressed concern about the future of the federal public servants, the way in which they could be absorbed wherever possible into the service of individual territorial governments, and the need for special arrangements for those who could not be absorbed in the territorial services.

Consultations which began at Victoria Falls with representatives of the Federal Public Service Association even before the conference ended will continue.

But the conference achieved more than mere agreement on a breaking-up operation. It also made arrangements for the study of subjects on which future collaboration between the territories might be worked out; and that, as Secretary of State R. A. Butler commented, showed a constructive attitude to the future of Central Africa.

The second of the post-conference committees will, in fact, discuss future collaboration between the territories on matters which the main committee refers to it.

It seems clear, for example, that Northern and Southern Rhodesia will work closely together on such inter-territorial undertakings as the great Kariba hydro-electricity scheme, the Rhodesia Railways and Central African Airways. The Southern Rhodesian government hopes that collaboration will extend to other fields.

There will, of course, be a long way to go even when the committees have reported in mid-September. The governments concerned will then be called upon to reach final decisions on all questions arising out of dissolution including decisions in principle on the areas of future collaboration.

By the middle of October the post-conference machinery will be expected to have worked out the principles on which the apportionment of assets and liabilities can be carried through. The final stage of the work of dividing the assets and liabilities will be undertaken and, it is hoped, completed, between October and December.

There is no doubt that besides reaching these major decisions on dissolution and possible fields of future collaboration, the conference provided a remarkable opportunity for the African leaders of Northern Rhodesia and the European leaders of Southern Rhodesia to have informal discussions outside the conference room.

I saw them mix amicably on such occasions, at evening receptions and in the public room of the hotel where the conference was held. Dr. Kaunda admitted that he had learned far more about the Southern Rhodesian prime minister, Mr. Winston Field, than he had ever known before.

For his part, Mr. Field said the get-togethers had been agreeable.

He said that the conference had been a success, and that he was looking forward to the future of Central Africa.

Ottawa Offbeat

Keeping Ready

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

JUST on the odd chance Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition suddenly, even magically, might be transformed to become a raging government-deavouring lion, the Liberals are keeping their election campaign organization in gear.

While in their present nervous state of mind, the Opposition very well might panic if anybody so much as whispered "election," political accidents can happen in the Commons, so the Liberals are keeping their party machine purring quietly along.

Even if the Conservatives really wanted to defeat the Pearson government, and at the moment, it's extremely doubtful, they couldn't do it alone.

For both Social Credit and the New Democrats are pledged to keeping the Liberals, their government and this Parliament in business at least for a couple of years yet.

There are some very bright and restive minds among the New Democrats... and who can be sure now of anything the "Crazy Casquette Kids" might do... so a sudden dissolution emergency is not altogether beyond the bounds of Parliamentary possibility.

Therefore, being practical politicians above all, the Liberals are keeping their key men at their campaign posts.

These are the three political executives largely responsible for planning and directing last spring's successful campaign: Senator John Connolly, National Liberal Federation president who served as Prime Minister Pearson's "road manager," Finance Minister Walter Gordon, the party "bagman" and boss of the campaign committee.

Keith Davey, national director, and general manager of party organization.

The decision to keep these captains on the alert at their campaign command posts was made at a quiet dinner the prime minister gave here in the capital the other night for a hand-picked few of the provincial Liberal organizers from across the country, the campaign committee and the Liberal Federation National Executive.

Whatever may be Walter Gordon's future fate as finance minister—and even Liberals are convinced that he must now be in the cabinet "out basket"—the prime minister made it pointedly plain that he was still his top "organization man."

It was Walter Gordon as "bagman" who filled the party's campaign chest to overflowing for the 1962 and '63 elections, and whether as finance minister or not, he'll be "The Collector" again for the next... come when it may.

Perhaps one of the reasons Walter Gordon found himself so savagely sandbagged by his own budget was that not only was he under pressure to get it out under that almost impossible deadline of "sixty blazing days of dynamic action," but that even then, he Great Seal of the United States that was hanging on the wall.

The Americans reluctantly conceded that this was a masterpiece—a skillful and artistic job that showed how far humanity had progressed since the early days of the keystone.

But the latest story of the developments of international Nosty-Parkerism needs a bit of swallowing—literally.

The tale goes that at an Embassy reception in Moscow, where the Russians were very anxious to know what was going on, they managed to place a dry martini on a shelf in the bar complete with an olive.

Only by mistake was it discovered that the olive was not really an olive at all, but was made of green colored plastic inside which was a transmitter.

The synthetic stalk was the aerial.

As I said, this needs a bit of swallowing—even under the influence of seven parts of gin to one of vermouth.

Today In History

By The Canadian Press

A bomb attempt on Adolf Hitler's life failed 19 years ago today—in 1944—as the last remnants of the German "opposition" sought to perform a coup d'état. The fact that he had escaped death was not known to the conspirators who set about implementing their plan. They were quickly rounded up and executed. Hitler was frightened by the attempt and instituted his last and most savage purge in which thousands of persons were shot.

1942—HMCS Huron, a Tribal class destroyer, was launched. 1943—Canadian and U.S. troops captured Palermo, the Sicilian capital.

wasn't able to give it all his time.

For the Liberals have been keeping him busy as "organization man."

He met the campaign committee, huddled with federation president Connolly and national organizer Davey, and conferred with Bruce Powe, the party's chief of Ontario organization.

The Gordon-Powe consultations were a follow-up to earlier talks between Ontario Liberal leader John Wintermeyer and Prime Minister Pearson.

They're all busy synchronizing their campaign watches.

Mr. Wintermeyer and the provincial MLAs gave Mr. Pearson and his federal MPs a big hand last spring in capturing much of urban Ontario, and, as it turned out, power on Parliament Hill.

So while the prime minister won't himself campaign, Ontario Liberal MPs and members of the federal cabinet will be out on the hustings when Mr. Wintermeyer and his men hit the campaign trail this fall in the provincial election.

And that all concerned will be in fine fighting trim, the federal Liberals, keeping their campaign organization in gear, are busy meshing Parliament Hill and Queen's Park gears.

Braille Bible

Growing Demand

By CECIL NORTHCOTT
from London

IN A SMALL basement room in the building of the Bible Society in London a machine slowly punched out the Bible. Dot by dot and line by line St. John's Gospel made its appearance on the gleaming surface of an aluminum plate. The Bible in Braille goes out from this room in 30 languages. After being punched on the aluminum plate, the completed sheet is fed into an ordinary platen printing machine where the stout, hard paper takes the impression, and leaves the raised dots ready for the blind reader.

In Britain, 175 people out of every 100,000 are blind, and not one need go without the complete Bible although the Braille Bible in English occupies seven feet of shelf space, takes up 33 large volumes, and costs £33 to produce. Any blind person will be given a volume of the English Bible every year by the Bible Society free of charge.

Louis Braille's system of reading is based on his "six dots" which singly, or in combination, can be used to express any required letters or symbols. It is a system that has proved astonishingly simple to adapt for all kinds of languages, and the steady aim of the Bible Society is to put the Bible into as many languages as possible, and as far as its resources will permit. Each volume it produces from the basement in Queen Victoria Street, London, costs 15 shillings to produce, but they are usually sold at 1s. 6d. each.

The parish of the Bible Society is world-wide, but so far the complete Braille Bible is available only in Welsh, Arabic and English. This compares with over 200 languages for ordinary readers, and the 666 languages in which the New Testament is produced.

But the numbers of blind readers are increasing. In India alone there are said to be nearly two million totally blind people, and in the territories of former British colonies another million. The provision of books is a prolonged and expensive undertaking, and usually the Bible, or parts of it, is first on the list of basic books.

Translators usually begin with St. John's Gospel, and then move on to the three other Gospels, and in the Old Testament produce the Psalms. In French, for instance, only the Gospels of St. Luke and St. John with the Psalms are available; in Spanish, St. Mark and St. John, while Dutch has the whole of the New Testament.

In Asian and African languages, blind people have the Psalms and four Gospels in Hindi; St. Mark in Bengali; St. Mark and St. John in Burmese; while in three dialects of Chinese—Canton, Foochow and Mandarin—nearly the whole of the Bible is represented. In Africa, Bantu, Hausa, Nyanja, and Shona have portions of the Bible.

The growth of literacy, combined with the increasing concern for the welfare of blind people, is likely to make this service of the Bible Society more prominent in the immediate future. The present output of 2,000 volumes a year is recognized as only a modest contribution to the needs of the world's blind. But when each volume measures over a foot square, and makes up an English Bible in Braille to over 5,000 pages and the 26 volumes weigh one-and-a-half hundredweight, then the publishing venture is not inconsiderable.

Different Now

By GREGORY CLARK

WHEN I heard the piano playing. With valor, I stuck the cock-eyed performance to its end, and it was a thing called Caprice by a gentleman named Shoshorn or Horne-shes, or some such name. I retired to the back porch to think about it.

There were always cock-eyed people in this world, and I am satisfied they were happy and took enjoyment out of being cock-eyed. But nowadays, with the population so increased, and the mass media offering such wonderful communication, it seems the cock-eyed have got together and are proceeding to make a cult of the cock-eyed. In times past, they never disturbed us much; but things are different now.

Teachers Press For Federal Aid

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Canadian Teachers' Federation will conduct a campaign to highlight educational inequalities in an effort to gain support for federal aid to education.

At the closing session of the federation's annual meeting Friday delegates decided to spend $7,700 for the project. Chairman Wesley Janzen of New Westminster said objectives are to point out inequalities of opportunity between rich and poor provinces, that education is of national interest and that money spent will result in dividends.

GO DOWN DRAIN

Rev. J. H. Conway of St. Patrick's College, Ottawa, said he feared the campaign money would go down the drain without much prospect of success. "Due to the present political climate, federal aid to education at elementary and secondary levels doesn't have a ghost of a chance," he said.

Members also set up a committee to plan for inter-provincial exchanges of teachers. The federation edged away from a stand on a resolution from Manitoba that advocated restrictions on tobacco advertising. Delegates gave the resolution to directors for a report next year.

Sea Limit Talk Soon

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin said Friday negotiations may start toward the end of August with the U.S. about a 12-mile fishing zone off Canada's coast and U.S. historical fishing rights there. Canada has declared the intention of claiming a 12-mile zone starting in mid-May, 1964.

U.S. Senator:

Pearson, JFK More Compatible

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. George Aiken, a Vermont Republican and chairman of the Senate Canadian affairs subcommittee, said Friday Canadian relations with the U.S. were friendlier since Lester Pearson replaced John Diefenbaker as prime minister.

Mr. Pearson, he said, is "a little more compatible" with President Kennedy.

Sen. Aiken told newsmen after his subcommittee was briefed by the state department that there was a greater effort toward cooperation between the two countries than before the election.

"Perhaps the personalities involved at the top might be a little more compatible than a year ago," he said, then added: "I'm not given to overstatement, you know."

The subcommittee was

Fewer Born More Die

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian births and marriages in the first six months of the year declined from totals in the corresponding 1962 periods, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said Friday. Deaths were up in the half-year period.

In the six months, births declined to 233,618 from 235,784 and marriages to 46,747 from 47,846. Deaths rose to 78,608 from 73,606.

Dockers Back to Work Union Back to Talks

B.C. Surplus Called 'Bribe Fund'

B.C.'s $40,000,000 accumulated surplus is a Social Credit political "bribe fund" of taxpayers' money, the NDP charged Friday.

In a statement released over the signature of David Barrett (NDP—Dewdney) the government was charged with amassing a "disgusting" surplus by failing to meet financial responsibilities to universities, retarded children, social welfare recipients and others.

"There is only one reason for this starvation of services, to enable this Social Credit government to build up a bribery fund of taxpayers' money for the next provincial election."

Longshoremen in Vancouver, New Westminster and Port Moody are to return to work today and their union leaders plan to return to negotiation.

Stan Ball of Victoria, a member of the four-man negotiating team for the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU), said in Vancouver last night union representatives plan to keep an appointment today with representatives of the Shipping Federation of B.C.

The union called a one-day work stoppage in Vancouver, New Westminster and Port Moody Friday so union officials could report at mass general membership meetings on the progress of negotiations.

Mr. Ball said union members strongly backed their officers' stand.

The approximately 150 longshoremen in Victoria did not stop work.

Just Good Patronage?

OTTAWA (UPI)—The federal government's advertising accounts—a traditional form of patronage for political favors—got amirring in the House of Commons Friday that was mildly embarrassing for Prime Minister Pearson and some of his cabinet.

The cabinet gave many reasons why much of the $12,500,000 earmarked for government advertising is being switched to new firms.

Finally a laughing Gilles Grégoire (SC—Lapointe) used the word both government and opposition had skirted. He asked if it was just "good patronage."

"There must have been a reason," Mr. Grégoire said. "Was the other (company) not good?"

Mr. Pearson replied the reason was the same this time as when the Diefenbaker administration took office in 1957.

Mr. Grégoire said just because the Tories did it was no reason for the Liberals to follow suit.

"Was the reason just good patronage?" he asked, drawing laughter from all sides.

The exchange started when David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) said a Toronto newspaper had quoted national Liberal organizer Keith Davey as estimating this year's fiscal spending on advertising at $12,500,000 instead of the $7,000,000 originally estimated.

The report also said MacLaren's Advertising—which handled the Liberal campaign and Collier Advertising Ltd. would be given the biggest account, the $1,800,000 Government Travel Bureau spendings. It had been held by Dalton K. Camp and Associates, Burns Advertising Agency and Stanfield, Johnson and Hill Ltd.

Camp was national Conservative organizer in the recent election.

New Democrat leader T. C. Douglas asked the prime minister if the change was because these firms had handled the Liberal campaign.

Mr. Pearson confessed: "I am not well informed on those questions."

Kidnap Suspect Wanted to Love Sad, Lonely Woman

CHICAGO (UPI)—The summer had been a sad and lonely one for Mrs. Mary Jane Dunlap, 39.

On June 20, her husband, Lawrence, a Chicago traffic policeman, died. A few days later, her father died and she took a long, hot trip to southern Illinois for his funeral.

Then she had a miscarriage. That was especially hard, because although her husband had four children by a previous marriage, they did not have any of their own.

Newborn Baby

Last Wednesday she returned to her apartment with a newborn baby. She called her neighbors and asked them to come and look at the little girl.

She treated the child tenderly. Neighbors noticed she stayed up late Wednesday night caring for her.

FBI Search

Meanwhile, the FBI was pressing a search for an 18-day-old baby which had been taken from the home of a teen-ager mother in Metropolis, Ill.

The mother, Mrs. Rose Burnham, 19, whose husband, Lawrence, is stationed at nearby Ft. Campbell, Ky., said a bleached blonde stranger, with her hair swept into a "French twist," had taken the baby for some pictures.

Mrs. Burnham said the woman came to her parents' home where she and her baby, Lori Ann, were staying and told her the child had won a "baby of the month" contest sponsored by the "Mamie Memorial Medical Auxiliary."

She said the "well-dressed, well-spoken" woman first appeared at the home Tuesday, identified herself as "president" of the auxiliary and told her about the contest.

Lori Dressed

"I had Lori dressed up when she came back Wednesday," the mother said. "I told the lady I had a blanket to wrap Lori in, but she told me the blanket wasn't needed. She told me she had a comforter in the car."

"I wasn't suspicious," Mrs. Burnham said. "It never occurred to me that this would happen."

When the woman failed to return with the baby that night, Mrs. Burnham called authorities.

Police and the FBI issued an alert for Illinois and Kentucky. Mason County officers said a Paducah, Ky., car rental agency reported a woman rented a car similar to the one in which the abductor drove away from the home of Mrs. Burnham's parents.

The FBI said the woman gave a Chicago address. Less than 20 hours after Lori was taken, FBI agents found the tion of a kidnap victim. She was released on a personal recognizance bond pending a hearing Aug. 1. A district attorney said she would be given a mental examination. "I just wanted something to love," the woman sobbed.

Helicopter Drops Lookout in Place

A prefabricated forest lookout building made B.C. history recently when a helicopter transported the parts onto a 4,407-foot mountain and lowered them into place.

A second record was established at the same time—the lookout was the highest of its kind in the province.

Plans for establishing a lookout on Tangle Mountain—near Nanaimo's famous ski resort—had been pondered for some time at the insistence of Comox Logging Co., a subsidiary of Crown Zellerbach. But inaccessibility of Tangle Mountain so far had prevented from planting a lookout on top of the mountain which provides the best view of Vancouver Island.

So the forest service decided on the experiment by flying in the lookout construction. This brings the number of lookouts on the island to 25. Original idea was to fly in the building in one piece, but the pilot decided against it for fear it would prove too heavy for the helicopter. It was finally transported in two parts.

If the forest service decides the experiment was successful—and it appears to have been—then bigger and better lookouts will be transported to other inaccessible mountains.

Operation lookout drop lasted a whole day. First the lumber for the foundation was hoisted up, then the building, followed by equipment—including a garbage can.

Wind, updrafts and down-drafts combined to make the hauling by helicopter tricky, especially since rugged terrain on top of Tangle Mountain made landing impossible. The loads were dropped from a low altitude.

Helicopter lowers gable-shaped roof onto forest lookout.—(Abnes Flett)

Thousands For Mice Eggs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John Williams, Delaware Republican who is an unofficial watchdog of government spending, Thursday cited some unusual amounts granted for research.

Williams said the department of health, education and welfare has approved research grants providing:

- $4,721 for a study of the "regulation of development of the mouse egg."
- $5,745 for a study of the "physiological adaptation of the Mexican free-tailed bat."
- $4,130 to promote a study of the "effects of frustration on a reflex response."

Summer School Shines

By BERT BENNY

The Victoria Summer School of Music played its first recital at Victoria High School auditorium last night before a rather small but very enthusiastic audience.

Both faculty and students contributed to the program with principal Dr. Clayton Hare receiving two deserved encores for his playing of Brahms' violin sonata in D minor. He was accompanied by Dorothy Swetnam who teaches piano at the school.

Best received of the items provided by the school orchestra was Mozart's Allegro in C. The Portland University string quartet was excellent in its playing of another Mozart composition. The quartet included Michael Adamson of Oak Bay and James Ross from Sidney. Karen Swenson, first violin, and cellist Gerry Ruth Wickersham complete the group.

There were several solo items but, at that, one less than intended.

Pianist Marshall John of Spokane was unable to appear, having broken his finger—according to report—in a ball game.

New U.S. Tax Move May Benefit City

Victoria will probably gain immediate short-term benefits from the new 15 per cent tax on U.S. foreign investments.

The new tax, announced by President Kennedy this week, will result in a greater demand for available Canadian investment funds.

It just happens that the city is preparing to invest between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 in tax collections on a short-term basis.

City manager Dennis Young said the immediate effect of the new tax on short-term borrowing are shown by interest rates on 30-day loans which have jumped from 3.52 per cent to 4.17 per cent in the space of a few days.

A year from now, when the city may decide to issue debentures covering a proposed capital budget, the new tax, if it remains in effect, may cost Victoria more money.

In any event, when that time comes, Mr. Young will likely argue strongly in favor of borrowing the money on the Canadian market.

While the greater demand created for the Canadian dollar will also reflect in domestic interest rates, he said, municipalities in this country have a "moral responsibility not to aggravate our own domestic situation" by seeking loans in the U.S.

It is impossible at this time to predict what effect the new ruling will have on other shorter term borrowing to which the city is already committed.

This includes about $50,000 for local improvements, $75,000 for the extension of Rose Street, and over a period of several months about $200,000 of the total $550,000 borrowing authorized by ratepayers last December for the Centennial Square project.

20 Rebels Executed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Syria's Ba'athist Socialist regime ordered firing squads into action Friday in a swift sequel to Thursday's abortive revolt. Broadcast communiques announced the execution at intervals of 20 rebels—military and civilian.

Trouble remained evident. Diplomatic advice reaching Beirut said heavy small-arms fire broke out about 11 a.m. Friday near the Syrian defence ministry and sporadic shooting was heard in other parts of Damascus until about 12:30 p.m.

NEW GENEVA—A new curfew was clamped on all Syria and Syrians were warned to stay indoors on penalty of being shot. Demonstrations and the carrying of arms were banned. International telephone service, restored briefly, was cut again. Syria's borders remained closed.

A hard-line was taken by Maj. Gen. Amin Hafez, who holds the posts of defence minister, army chief of staff and deputy military governor.

DETERMINED—It was obvious that the Ba'athists, who won power through a revolution March 1, were determined to hold it against attacks from either dissident military forces or backers of President Nasser of the United Arab Republic. The line-up suggested both were involved in the latest uprising.

'Bestial' Man Jailed

A man who was termed "morally bankrupt" by Crown Prosecutor T. P. O'Grady in city magistrate's court Friday was sentenced to two years less a day in Oakalla.

Before passing sentence on Stuart Duncan Robertson, 366 Wilmet Place, Magistrate William Ostler pointed out the accused's behavior was bestial and animal.

Robertson was sentenced on a morals charge which involved a 14-year-old girl. Magistrate Ostler pointed out it had been a difficult decision on whether to send the man to the penitentiary.

Accused of being drunk in a public place William Fisher called on a fellow prisoner to clear him of the charge but lost his case.

He called on Edgar L. Fenton, who earlier appeared on a charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident, to give evidence.

The court was told four men consumed a bottle of wine between them early Thursday. Fisher was picked up by police on Yates Street.

Questioned by Magistrate Ostler the men admitted no breakfast was eaten before

Arctic Legislators Sweating It Out

INUVIK, N.W.T. (CP)—Eighty-degree temperatures ruled Friday as the nine members of the Northwest Territories Council began their summer session in this community 100 miles above the Arctic Circle. First order of business, a motion to remove jackets for comfort, was approved unanimously.

Meat Strikers Seek Change in Injunction

Judgment has been reversed on an attempt to get the B.C. Supreme Court to alter an injunction it has granted against the striking union at the Alberta Meat Market.

Mr. Justice J. S. Atkins Friday heard several hours of argument by E. E. Pearlman, lawyer for the market, which sought the injunction, and Donald McTaggart of Vancouver, lawyer for the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America. The union chiefly seeks the right to picket trucks of the meat market while the trucks are making pickups from suppliers or deliveries to customers.

The injunction will stay in effect until a judgment is handed down, probably early next week. It does not prohibit regular picketing of the market, but only certain activities.

City Boys Win Awards

WASAGAMING, Man. (CP)—Army cadets from Victoria won seven of 13 awards as 250 western Canadian boys graduated from a two-week course at a tented campsite near here in Riding Mountain National Park, 170 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

George Dowler, 14, of 4524 West Saanich Road, was named best cadet on the course and also took top marksmanship honors. A member of the Canadian Scottish cadet corps, he commended the final parade Thursday.

BEST PLATOON AWARDS

Best platoon cadet award went to William McMillan, Thomas Dewall, David Rudi and Mervyn Westby, all of Victoria. Francis Elliott, Winnipeg, and David Evans of Camp Shilo, Man.

Awards for the most improved cadets in the group were won by Kim Spurrier and Stuart Green, both of Victoria.

The cadets, all 14 and 15-year-olds from Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, were trained in military subjects, leadership, physical education and organized sports.

Redfern Park children won the city's sandbox sculpture contest Friday with a multiple display of architecture through the ages and dominated by a large model of Mount Vesuvius complete to red lava and smoke.

Second place went to children registered at Central Park for a finely detailed model of the Taj Mahal. About 170 children from all nine parks where city-sponsored summer recreation programs are held took part.

Next Friday more than 3,000 children are expected to take part in the annual fishing derby off the Ogden Point breakwater, beginning at 1 p.m. All children wishing to take part must register at the T. Eaton Co. store which is sponsoring the event—in the toy, children's wear or sporting goods departments.

Victoria RCMP said last night they have no leads as to the whereabouts of Clarence Anderson, 45, who escaped from the William Head minimum security prison early Thursday.

He is five feet, four inches in height, 152 pounds, with fair complexion, brown hair, slight build.

A report that the CPR's retired Alaska cruise ship Princess Louisa would become a hotel-restaurant vessel at Tsawwassen drew a "no comment" from a CPR official Friday.

An earlier rumor had the ship sold to Greek interests and on its way to the Mediterranean. According to the latest report, a group of Vancouver businessmen have an option on the retired Princess and plan to operate a 50-cabin hotel-restaurant for government ferry patrons.

Operators of the Lady Alexandra restaurant vessel at Vancouver are said to be interested in the CPR ship.

New U.S. Tax Move May Benefit City

Victoria will probably gain immediate short-term benefits from the new 15 per cent tax on U.S. foreign investments.

The new tax, announced by President Kennedy this week, will result in a greater demand for available Canadian investment funds.

It just happens that the city is preparing to invest between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 in tax collections on a short-term basis.

City manager Dennis Young said the immediate effect of the new tax on short-term borrowing are shown by interest rates on 30-day loans which have jumped from 3.52 per cent to 4.17 per cent in the space of a few days.

A year from now, when the city may decide to issue debentures covering a proposed capital budget, the new tax, if it remains in effect, may cost Victoria more money.

In any event, when that time comes, Mr. Young will likely argue strongly in favor of borrowing the money on the Canadian market.

While the greater demand created for the Canadian dollar will also reflect in domestic interest rates, he said, municipalities in this country have a "moral responsibility not to aggravate our own domestic situation" by seeking loans in the U.S.

It is impossible at this time to predict what effect the new ruling will have on other shorter term borrowing to which the city is already committed.

This includes about $50,000 for local improvements, $75,000 for the extension of Rose Street, and over a period of several months about $200,000 of the total $550,000 borrowing authorized by ratepayers last December for the Centennial Square project.

Bat Owes Freedom To Liz

Elizabeth Taylor found a bat taking a swim, but she didn't bat an eyelid. She summoned the help of three friends, and together they rescued the chirping bat from a wet grave.

This happened in Victoria last night, and Liz is real 15 years old, of 1725 Beach Drive.

The bat is, or rather was, also real as it plunged into the apartment block's swimming pool.

Helpers were David Bell, 16, of 3065 Uplands Road, Mark Middle, 14, of 1860 Adams, and Linda Armstrong, 16, of 4124 Gordon Head Road.

What to do with a wet bat? Liz phoned Rudy's Petpark, but she said she was told a bat in a zoo would be as dead as a doornail within short time.

Meanwhile, the bat, which was foaming at the mouth, had been kept in a box to dry off.

Later last night, the bat was set free.

Liz and her friends claim the bat batted out of there faster than a bat out...

A 39-year-old woman was near death last night from injuries suffered Friday morning in a crash on Patricia Bay Highway.

Late Friday afternoon two more people were injured in another crash on the same highway.

Mrs. Mary Holden of Lancashire, England, was in "only fair" condition at Rest Haven Hospital, where she had been admitted with extensive head injuries.

TWO OTHERS HURT

Two other women in the car with Mrs. Holden were also injured.

Mrs. Clara Ward, 60, Montreal, suffered a broken nose, jaw, ribs and both arms, and underwent surgery early yesterday afternoon, while driver of the car, Mrs. Alice Sidders, 30, of Twin Beaches, Callano Island, was given treatment for multiple cuts, bruises and shock.

MAN, WIFE INJURED

Victims of the afternoon accident were identified by Sidney RCMP as Terrence Frederick Bradley and his wife Geraldine, of 1824 Belmont. They were also rushed to Rest Haven Hospital by Sidney and Central Saanich volunteer fire department ambulances.

Mrs. Bradley was in good condition in Rest Haven last night. Her husband, a crew member of HMCS Fraser, was transferred to HMCS Naden Hospital. He is in satisfactory condition.

FALLING INCIDENTS

Both of Friday's accidents involved passing situations.

In the morning crash, the small car in which the three women were riding left the road, smashed into a fence post and crashed over two ditches after a station wagon driven by John Henry Amies of Port Washington pulled out to pass the car driven by Mrs. Sidders but was forced to cut in front of her car to avoid a head-on collision with an approaching vehicle.

OUT OF CONTROL

In the afternoon accident, the southbound Bradley car appeared to have been pulling out of the line of traffic to pass when it went out of control.

Police said the Bradley car grazed the rear fender of a northbound car driven by John

Timber! And Houses, Brush Burst into Flames

A North Saanich man Friday inadvertently chopped a tree down over a 12,000-volt power line, setting fire to two houses and starting several small grass and brush fires.

Sidney Volunteer Fire Department chief Art Gardner said damage to the two houses might be in excess of $1,500.

Mr. Gardner said the fire department was called out to quell the small grass fires which started when the line went down, but they soon found that two neighboring houses had also been ignited by the downed line. "If we hadn't been there when the house fires started, the houses might have been destroyed," said Mr. Gardner.

He said the heavy power line fell across lines leading into houses at 1130 Maple Road, owned by John Morris, and at 1120 Maple Road, owned by Mrs. B. Martin, but presently unoccupied.

Mr. Gardner said small fires were started at electrical outlets throughout the two houses, burning out all wiring and appliances and burning holes through walls in several places.

Mr. Gardner said his department managed to save the houses by keeping the fires in check until a B.C. Hydro crew cut off power to the main line.

He said the tree which started the whole thing was cut down by Jack Fraser, who lives in the neighborhood. He had apparently taken precautions to fell the tree away from the line, but the wind caught it at the last moment, dropping it in the opposite direction.

Timber Fires Give Fighters Slow Burn in Langford

B.C. Forest Service firefighters are pretty burned up about things at Langford. Human carelessness has caused a fire a day there since Wednesday.

All were small and stayed that way until they were extinguished, but forest officials are alarmed at the rate of negligence which started them.

The forest hazard remains low throughout the Vancouver Forest district except for the Langford area, where it is classified as moderate.

New fires were low throughout the province during the last week, with only 42 reported. Fire-fighting costs increased only $4,000 to a total of $226,000 for the season so far. Last year at this time the total cost was only $109,700.

Thirty-four fires are still burning in the province but most are in the mop-up stage.

Officials said unsettled weather will probably produce no increase in the woods hazard over the week-end.

Death Near Off William Head For Vancouver Man and Daughter

An unidentified Vancouver man and his young daughter had a narrow escape from drowning yesterday afternoon while fishing in the waters off William Head.

Chris Carey, a former Colo-niat copy boy now living in California and on holidays in Victoria, was fishing with Bill Smith, son of the owner of Pedder Bay Marina, when he spotted an overturned boat in the strait.

They raced out to the capsized boat and pulled the man and his daughter from the water.

After rescuing the pair, they took the small boat in tow and brought it to the marina. There were no injuries to the rescued pair.

City Payments Will Boost Wyatt Pension

The city will pay $171 a month into the B.C. municipal superannuation fund on behalf of retiring city manager C. C. Wyatt.

The payments, due to start in October, will continue for his lifetime.

Action was taken by city council at a closed committee meeting July 11 and was made public yesterday.

It will boost the pension received by Mr. Wyatt, who leaves the city service Sept. 30 after 13 years, to $259 a month.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said yesterday that for the first eight years of Mr. Wyatt's service, starting in 1950, neither he nor the city made any contributions towards the municipal superannuation fund.

"The manager was over 50 when he came to Victoria and at that time, in fact right up to 1958, there was no feasible pension plan for a man of his age," the mayor said.

Some five years ago, changes in the Municipal Superannuation Act approved by the legislature permitted civic employees previously considered over-age to qualify for pension benefits.

Contributions paid into the fund in the past five years will give Mr. Wyatt a monthly pension of $88.

Council agreed to pay a further $171 into the fund in addition to what he was already getting. The payment is to start "on his retirement and as from Oct. 1, 1963, and during his lifetime," the resolution said.

Mayor Wilson said during Mr. Wyatt's 13 years as city manager he had turned down salary increases granted to other civic department heads totalling $14,000.

CONSIDERATION

Mr. Wyatt refused these salary increases, the mayor added, on the "tacit understanding" that he would receive consideration of his position at the time of his retirement.

The $171 monthly payment is computed from the provincial manual covering municipal superannuation and is based on average salary over the eight-year period.

Mr. Wyatt was hired in 1950 at $10,000 a year. This was increased to $12,000 after three years and he is now earning $13,500 a year.

CLOSED MEETING

At the same closed meeting, council decided to pay contributions to the pension fund on behalf of retiring Chief Constable John Blackstock at the rate of $53.60 a month, rather than in a lump sum of more than $10,000.

When Mr. Blackstock submitted his resignation, effective Dec. 31, on the eve of the Archer Report it was disclosed that the police commission had agreed to pay up his pension for the three years up to retirement age.

Colquitz Creek

'Stinking Mess' Charged

Saanich residents living near Colquitz Creek have complained the stream has become a "stinking mess" because of an inadequate sewage plant serving the Northridge subdivision.

One resident charged: "The creek has become so foul even a dog can't swim in it."

DID NOT KNOW

Sewer supervisor George Bone said Friday it was possible the plant had overflowed into the creek but he did not know of any occasion when this did happen.

Saanich engineer Neville Life said the plant was built to handle some 90 houses but has been serving many more houses for some time.

He added new equipment is being installed to increase the capacity of the plant.

BEVERLEY COX

The trollers are heading to sea again.

Troller fishermen were expected to leave Victoria Fishermen's Wharf and other B.C. ports, mostly today, to fish off the west coast of Vancouver Island beginning Sunday despite a net fishermen's and shore-workers' strike which has hitherto immobilized the whole B.C. coast fishing industry.

The trolling operation, east of Cape Cook, has been organized by the Pacific Trollers Association, under president Richard Williams of Victoria, which will function virtually as a co-operative to enable trollers to fish despite the strike.

TOOK ON ICE

Larger craft in the B.C. fleet of independently owned and operated troll fishing boats took on ice Saturday and will act as packers, carrying fish from trollers which catch them to a market in the United States.

Rennie Stanton, association secretary, said the association is currently concealing the identity of the buyers in order to spare them as long as possible from the inevitable harassment by the striking United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union.

ONLY COHO

An association statement said no fishing must begin before Sunday and association packers will accept no fish except coho more than 22 inches and spring salmon more than 26. Association spokesmen have previously stressed that net fishermen are primarily interested in other types of salmon—pink and sockeye.

Any member who tries to find his own market without first consulting association officials will be automatically suspended from the trollers association.

Mr. Stanton said the association plans to extend fishing to other areas when more packers are available.

$300,000 LOST

He estimated the province's troll fishermen have lost more than $300,000 already through being immobilized by the net fishermen's strike, which began last Saturday. He predicted about 95 per cent of the independent trollers will go to sea this weekend.

Some 3,000 trollers, about 120 of them from Victoria, have been involuntarily idled by the strike.

Meanwhile, pickets relaxed in the sun at the B.C. Packers plant at Ogden Point, Victoria's only union fish processing plant, in the third day of striking by union shore workers. One striking Ogden Point employee, not picketing Friday, termed the union's decision to strike "ridiculous."

On strike are some 10,000 salmon net fishermen and shore workers, some 250 to 300 from the Victoria area including the handful at Ogden Point.

Local Youth Still 'Poor' After Crash

Still in poor condition in a Chilliwack hospital following a car-bus collision near Chilliwack Wednesday is Arthur Russell Bjostrom, 14, of 1615 Fashoda, Glen Lake.

Arthur was a passenger in a car driven by his brother Barry, 18, when it collided with a bus containing 48 children on their way from Agassiz to Sardis for a swimming lesson.

Arthur's mother, Mrs. B. Bjostrom, was reported in fair condition.

'School for Junkmen' on Rockland

A one-time candidate for mayor of Victoria whose yard was summed up as "containing a vast heap of junk" told city magistrate's court yesterday he was running a school for junkmen.

Harry Haigh, 1966 Rockland, told the court he had 100 men up to his home during the last year who were out of work and couldn't get welfare. "They didn't know how they were going to make a dollar," said Mr. Haigh.

"I used the stuff to show them how to make money and lost $2,000."

At this point in the testimony Magistrate William Oatley pointed out if Mr. Haigh was running a school he could be charged licence fees.

He is charged with unlawfully operating a junkyard.

Mr. Haigh, whose consistently loaded truck and green beret have become well-known throughout the city during the past decade, sat quietly smiling as city building inspector Alex James read a list of articles he found in the yard during an inspection.

Included were kitchen sinks, broken TV antennas, angle iron, steel rails, stained glass windows, tins, bottles, rusty bolts, a disintegrated cabin trunk, rusty ice skates and some bits of railway tracks.

"And these were only samples of the junk around the property," Mr. James said. "There was a used shoe polisher but there was no evidence of it being used by anyone on these premises."

Prosecutor T. P. O'Grady asked what type of an area Mr. Haigh's home was located in but Magistrate Oatley said the question was irrelevant; the issue was whether the accused was operating a junk yard.

Mr. Haigh told the court he had purposely plugged up his driveway so it would be impossible to bring any more junk in. He pointed out he had spent most of the last six weeks sleeping. "I can't see how that is considered operating a junk yard."

Magistrate Oatley said from the pictures displayed in evidence the property was a showplace for junk. "Apparently it is moved from one place to another to make a more artistic arrangement," he said.

He pointed out Mr. Haigh appeared in court in April and had been bound over to be of good behavior for six months. He suggested Mr. Haigh spend the money he pays out in fines to hire professional movers to clean up the property.

"I think city council would be delighted," replied Prosecutor O'Grady.

The case was remanded until July 26.

In a pre-Congress message, Rt. Rev. F. H. Wilkinson, Bishop of Toronto, listed some of the dioceses to be represented among the 73 nations in the Anglican communion:

Aberdeen and Orkney, Accra, Adelaide, the Arctic, Madagascar, Delhi, Haiti, Liberia, Capetown, Perth, Polynesia, New York, the Sudan, Taiwan.

TOP CLERKS

The English-speaking world is sending the archbishops of Canterbury and York, Australia and Dublin. Japan is sending the bishops of Kobe and Tokyo.

Singapore, Malaya, Thailand, Indonesia, Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia will be represented by Rt. Rev. Roland Koh, bishop in Kuala Lumpur in the diocese of Singapore and Malaya.

One of the largest delegations will come from Ireland, headed by the Most Rev. James McCann, Archbishop of Armagh and Primate of All Ireland.

Edmonton Ceremony For Victoria Girl

Of interest in Victoria is the wedding of Linda Rae Porter and Mr. Michael Peter Kipot which took place recently in St. Joseph's Cathedral, Edmonton. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Eric Porter, Eastdowne Road, Victoria, and Mr. and Mrs. Steve Kipot, Chauvin, Alta.

Rev. Father J. Crough officiated at the double ring ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by Mr. Ken Lindstrand.
The bride chose a gown of white satin, styled with square neckline and full hooped skirt. A crystal coronet, which matched her necklace, held her shoulder-length veil. Tallman roses, stephanotis and trailing rosebuds were in her bouquet.
Bridesmaids Miss Elaine Blades and Miss Erika Kipot were in identical dresses of turquoise blue satin. They wore white floral whistles and carried bouquets of white daisies.
Mr. Tony and Mr. Victor Kipot were groomsmen for their brother. Albert Zurluh and Paul Mania were ushers.

The reception was held at the Highway Hotel where a buffet supper was served and a wedding dance held. White gladiolus and pink carnations decorated the bride's table which was centred with a three-tiered cake made by the bride's mother. Ken Lindstrand proposed the toast to the bride.

The new Mrs. Kipot changed to a three-piece pink and white suit, pink hat and white accessories for a honeymoon trip to Victoria. The newlyweds will make their home in Edmonton.

Miss Noel A. M. Smith, 2763 Cadboro Bay Road, leaves by air for Paris today, where she will join a group of American piano teachers on a study tour of Europe under the auspices of Study Abroad Inc. This tour is specially planned for the needs and interests of the piano teacher. At Salzburg, during the festival, Miss Smith will take a concentrated course at the Mozarteum Academy and will join a group of English piano teachers in their annual workshop on Piano Technique Teaching and Performance, held under the auspices of the Music Teachers' Association of Great Britain, at the Teachers' College in Matlock, Derbyshire. Miss Smith will motor through Italy, Bavaria, Switzerland and England, attend the Edinburgh Festival and visit with relatives in London and Suffolk before returning to Victoria in mid-September. — (H. ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I hope you will answer this in your breezy, up-to-the-minute style. Please don't turn narrow-minded on me or I'll just die.

I am taking a summer course at U.C.L.A. I have rented a comfortable room near campus with a nice family. I can have my meals with the family but it would cost $20 a month extra. I'm trying to get by on as little as possible and this is why I am writing.

A very nice fellow who is in my sociology class has a nice apartment with a cute kitchenette. This boy has offered to buy the groceries and I can have all my meals with him if I will do the cooking.

I am a good cook and would like to take him up on his offer if you say it is O.K. Also it would give me a chance to experiment with some new recipes. What do you say?

SUNNY.
Dear Sunny: Have your meals with the family, Toots. And if you are so eager to experiment with new recipes ask the women if you can prepare some of the meals in her kitchen. She'll probably be delighted.

You are putting a pretty low price on your services if you are willing to hire yourself out as a cook and bottle-washer for $5 a week. (P.S. I apologize if this advice isn't in keeping with my usual breezy, up-to-the-minute style.)

Act as Candlelighters

ALBERNI—Young brothers of the bride and groom were candlelighters for the ceremony in St. Andrew's United Church when Yvonne Vivian Callister and Alexander MacDonald Forbes were married.
Rev. Roy Rodgers officiated at the service for the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Callister and the son of Mrs. Adam Forbes, Victoria, and John Barrett Forbes, Ladner.

As candlelighters, Jackie Callister and Jimmy Barr preceded the bride party down the aisle. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in portrait sheath gown of white tulle and lace, fashioned with chiffon overskirt and chapel train. Swiss jeweled appliques outlined the scoop neckline and were repeated on the slim skirt with distinctive traceries on the three-quarter length sleeves. Her four-tier scalloped bouquet of the bride and groom consisted of a pearl tiara and she carried a cascade of white orchids, stephanotis and ivy. Her attendants, matron of honor Mrs. Arlene Curwell, bridesmaids Miss Barbara Willis, Calgary, Miss Betty McLaren, Naramata, and Miss Marg Fitch, Vancouver, were costumed alike in sheath dresses of cool green iridescent taffeta with three-quarter sleeves and scooped necklines, overskirts of soft sparkle nylon organza. Each wore a large rose of organza on tulle as a headpiece and carried a colonial bouquet of candy-striped carnations. Best man was Dick D'Arcy, Vancouver, while Roy Curwell, Winnipeg, Ken Wiegand, Port Alberni, and Don Tremblay, Vancouver, acted as ushers.

Iris Need Care Now

By M. V. CHESNUT, F.W.S.

In yesterday's column I gave you the names and descriptions of some of the new tall bearded iris varieties which have done well in our garden. I pointed out that late July and early August is about the best time of the year to buy and plant iris roots.

By the same token, if you already have some good clumps of iris in your garden, this is the best time to take them up, divide them, and replant them in enriched soil. Left to themselves, iris clumps become over-crowded and the soil becomes run-down and impoverished, so far from glowing health, longer stems, bigger flowers and greater purity of coloring, they should be taken up and divided about every third year.

Ease the roots gently out of the ground with a digging fork, much as you would lift potatoes. Brush off or wash off the dirt so you can see what you are doing then divide the fleshy roots, called rhizomes, into smaller pieces for replanting. Don't cut them up too small, but allow two or three fans of leaves to each of the portions selected for replanting.

As I mentioned before, the soil is pretty sure to be impoverished if the iris clumps have been in the same position for several years, so full advantage should be taken of this opportunity, while the plants are out of the ground, to get in a few ticks on the site. It should be dug over to the full depth of the spade, and if you can get your hands on some spent mushroom compost or similar very old rotted manure, mix it in as you dig at the rate of one bucketful per square yard. Don't believe that old story about manure being bad for iris roots—careful experiments in South Africa have established that there is actually less root rot in manure-enriched soil. If you can't get manure, substitute peat moss at half the rate. If you have any wood ashes saved up, work it in too, for the iris is a great lover of potash.

Plant your pieces with a hand trowel. Make a little ridge in the bottom of the planting hole and set the rhizome on this, with the fine bottom roots spread out but well down, and with the rhizome itself only just barely under the surface. This is one point where many novices go wrong—they plant the rhizome far too deeply. Its top surface should be just about level with the ground. The rhizome should point to the south so the fan of leaves can never shade them, for a good baking in the sun is essential to the health of this fleshy root.

In planting, don't arrange them in regular rows, nor dot them here and there in splendid isolation, but group them in little clumps, each clump containing from three to five plants. With such formal and stylized foliage, iris should always be arranged in a loosely informal way.

With the plants in the ground, each one should be given a long, slow drink of water. This is not only to supply moisture, but for its mechanical effects in bringing the soil into close and intimate contact with the root hairs. Water can do this much better than any firming or tamping by hand.

Finally, get yourself a pair of scissors and give each fan of leaves a trim, cutting them back to half their height to reduce the strain on the roots while the plants are settling down. While the manner in which you make the cut doesn't have any effect upon the health of the plant, those stubs of leaves sticking up all over the bed will look neater if you trim them in the shape of an inverted V rather than straight across the fan.

Liz Got Laughs

LONDON (AP)—Elizabeth Taylor stood up the final rehearsal Thursday of 100 British theatrical stars for a revue Friday to raise funds for a charity devoted to orphans and actors.

London Palladium officials expected her first at noon, but at 3 p.m. sent everyone home.

The show was smooth, despite complaints from Miss Taylor that Sir Laurence Olivier was hogging the laughs.

Producer Charles Russell said certain time was barely 24 hours away when she said: "Mr. Laurence's lines are funnier than mine. I think you should do something about it."

Russell spent the night rewriting the script. Liz got laughs.

What I didn't know about Stephen Boyd until I had lunch with him is that he can't eat fish of any kind. "I blow up like Orson Welles, and even sound like him," he told me. Ava Gardner, who will be away from Spain for nine months in August, will rent her lush apartment in Madrid for $1,000 a month. Jim Philbrick, the TV actor in an interesting party, James Mason, with the Fall of the Roman Empire behind him, is settling in Switzerland with his jumbo-sized ping-pong table built to his own jumbo specifications.

That huge new Dino de Laurentis studio near the beach at Torre del Mar seems to have come to a halt, although it is two-thirds finished... and with Dino still determined to make a star of Ex-Queen Serrano, I am wondering what happened to his film plans for his wife Romya Mangano... After The Visit with Ingrid Bergman, Tony Quinn travels to Greece to star in Zorba. It will be a long time before Tony sees his magnificent home in New York. All his pictures are to be made abroad.

David Niven is not only rich from his Four Star company, but he is doing a landlaid business over here with a company that made swords and rapiers in the old days. The blades are in such demand that they are sold one at a time... Progress of a star:

MIDDLETON, Ohio (AP)—A lonely but disturbed boy genius told officials here he had found a way to beat the telephone company and place free international long distance calls as far away as Scotland Yard.

The 14-year-old boy said he had called Scotland Yard with a story about smuggled jewelry, telephoned a television star because he didn't like a program and impersonated a Brazilian operator to falsely inform his neighbors they had inherited a $1,000,000 estate in South America.

To support his story, the boy called Mexico City as county probation officer James Castle watched. "He apparently went to the library and picked numbers at random from the telephone books," Castle said. "Then he used a home-made device to make the calls." Officials withheld details of the boy's device.

The boy said he tried to describe his system to a friend, but that youngster's parents wound up with a $300 phone bill.

The boy was arrested after people in the community became suspicious of mysterious clicks on the telephone line.

Immaturity—and Vision

By INA D. D. UFFOFF

The first of a series of group exhibitions has made its debut and was well received.

It consists of the work of six local painters now well known for having developed individual artistic objectives, though the youngest, Michael Morris, is a student at the Vancouver School of Art, and Maxwell Bates is one of Canada's best-known painters who has now been living in Victoria for about a year.

There is a world of difference between the immaturity of the first and the authority of an artist like Bates, but in spite of this the show is a good one, with plenty of variety in the paintings and graphics. The outstanding item is undoubtedly Drummer Boy, a recently completed canvas by Maxwell Bates of rich textural quality and solid design.

Then there is the vision of the great Farming Jorgensen's Black Fields, and in Dawn subtly felt reactions to early morning fragrance of forms in the coming of day-light. Finely orchestrated tones of green complete the experience.

Richard Cicciomarra shows the haunting quality which distinguishes his work and extends the mood into a dimension of feeling in The Vision, and in The Figures, which is difficult to express in words.

Donald Harvey has recently

Special Service Finds Jobs for Handicapped

A comparatively little-known service by the Victoria National Employment Service office has in the first half of 1963 found jobs for 36 handicapped.

The special services division also has directed 33 persons to training classes and helped 33 others obtain training.

George Bevis, manager of the Victoria employment office, says the division locates work for the handicapped, keeps schools and students up to date on employment trends, counsels youth about suitable occupations and helps eligible persons get vocational training.

High school graduate individual counselling sessions have become so large it takes three evenings, from 7 p.m. to 10:30 p.m., to counsel all the students who seek the advice of some of the top men and women in various occupational fields.

This year 120 leading professional men and women gave up the time to counsel 335 stu-had a painting purchased by the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts, which is an honor and recognition.

It is distinguished by the control of color and expert handling of paint, but the two canvases he has in this show, though larger, are less satisfying.

There is restraint shown in Nita Forrest's Meditation, and an awareness of mood which is well handled in low key color, but Repeat is not as successfully realized.

Too much has been taken for granted in Michael Morris' July. There is fine color in one part, but there is too little definition in the rest of the canvas. It does not have enough to communicate.

Expertly handled collages and silk screen prints by Donald Harvey are an important contribution and there are many fine drawings, but it is the works of Maxwell Bates which establish his high level of achievement.

Riviera Coast Quakes Pyjamas Fly in Night

TUMIN, Italy (AP) — Three strong earthquakes rumbled across northwest Italy and the Italian and French Riviera coasts early Friday, sending thousands of pyjama-clad tourists and residents fleeing to open ground. There were no reports of deaths or injuries.

Damage was minor in the area's worst quake in 55 years. At about the same time, 400 miles south, Mt. Etna erupted in a spectacle witnessed by thousands.

'Polish Peter' Built Up Evil Empire

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—The spectre of a dead Polish refugee arose this week to reveal a slum property racket in London that would have disgraced the Chicago of Al Capone.

Missing

Call girl Ronna Ricardo, due as leading witness Monday in Stephen Ward vice trial, has not been seen since last Monday, police say. Convicted prostitute left her $62-a-week flat after saying: "I'm tired. I must get away for a while." Her rent was paid up and no forwarding address was left.

Gangster Tactics

Always managing to operate within the richly structured of the property laws, Rachman would buy up houses cheaply at the end of their leases and pack them with West Indian immigrants who could find no other home and were forced to pay his exorbitant rents.

He would frighten people out of rooms he wanted for his own tenants by sending in thugs to beat them up or make life unbearable by installing prostitutes as their neighbors.

To evict some unprofitable tenants he once had the entire roof ripped off a house.

The truth seems to be that his methods have been taken over by several anonymous men hiding behind a complex web of investment companies.

They wield real power. Some of the BBC's informants were too frightened to appear on the TV screen. Also, as The Daily

Mirror says in an editorial, "men 'know the law inside out' and 'use it for their own squalid ends.'"

They will be difficult to prosecute. But Labor MP Ben Parkin of North Paddington, one of Rachman's most profitable colonies, has been accumulating evidence. Next week he will also ask Parliament to frame new legislation to flush out the racketeers and to give local authorities more power over elusive landlords.

The problem partly involves rent control, a touchy topic for Tories, since they were responsible in 1957 for lifting the socialists' restrictions from landlords.

Another tricky aspect is the inflated value of London land, often £30,000 ($90,000) an acre, which passes into the hands of slum profiteers and prevents local councils from developing much-needed housing.

X-15 Sets Record Ahead of Schedule

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (CP-AP) — An X-15 research rocket plane, controlled by ace space pilot Joseph M. Walker, shot unexpectedly to a record X-15 altitude of 67 miles Friday. Walker, who flies for the United States Space Agency, was supposed to guide the plane to 315,000 feet (about 60 miles), barely surpassing the old X-15 record of 314,730 set a year ago by U.S. Air Force Maj. Joseph M. White.

WHY? HARDER KICK. Instead, the rocket plane soared to 350,000 feet, or nearly 67 miles. Why?

Walker attributed it to the fact the engine burned 85 seconds instead of the programmed 83, giving it a harder kick as it roared upward.

Plunging back into the thicker earth's atmosphere, Walker hit a top speed of 3,886 miles an hour.

STOLE OWN THUNDER. By soaring to 350,000 feet, Walker stole his own thunder in a way. Friday's flight had been described as a warmup for a 350,000-foot later in the summer.

The 350,000-foot area is regarded by some as the probable safe maximum for X-15s as they are now constructed. The engine has power to shoot them far higher, probably 100 miles or more. The problem is heat due to air friction as they return to earth.

One of the three X-15s is due to be equipped with new heat shielding for flights to 400,000 feet or more.

Although radio monitors announced his 350,000 feet while he was still aloft, Walker said he wasn't aware he had set a new record until he landed. "I thought my altimeter had gone wacky."

Probers Ask Clinics For Smokers

LOS ANGELES (LAT) — In an all-out attack on cigarette smoking, the state health department has recommended establishment of clinics to assist people in breaking the cigarette habit.

"The evidence now indicates that cigarette smoking has such a profoundly harmful effect on health that it should be abandoned," the department declared in a 56-page report outlining proposed actions.

It also recommended the legislature consider increasing the cigarette tax and greater restrictions on cigarette vending machines and smoking in public places.

"The fervor of the 'don't spit' campaign in the hygiene of a half-century ago might be re-invoked against cigarette smoking," the report said.

It said the view that smoking is detrimental to health and detracting from full work potential might attract labor and management to support an educational program.

Tax Talk
With U.S.
Promised

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Gordon said Friday the government plans to discuss with Washington Canada's "serious worries" about President Kennedy's proposed new tax on American purchases of securities from Canada and 21 other countries.

In a cautious statement, he told the Commons the situation resulting from the president's announcement Thursday of his tax proposal is "a little delicate."

But he added firmly: "I do not think it is too delicate. I think we will get out of it all right."

GOOD POSITION

Later he added: "The government is in an excellent position to negotiate with the United States."

Mr. Gordon entered the debate amid charges by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker that his June 13 budget measures may have provided a lead to the drastic Kennedy proposal.

HEDGES ON CHANGE

Mr. Diefenbaker, stating the new U.S. tax would affect Canada "to a tremendous degree," steered short of saying it resulted from the budget.

"What happened yesterday was an understandable consequence of the government's action in this budget... It gave

Warncke said that should be punishment enough and put them on probation.

Pull-Out in 1960
Crippled Economy

CHINA ADMITS
SOVIET BLOW

TOKYO (UPI)—Red China today coupled a new blast at Russian communists with the admission that the withdrawal of Soviet technicians in 1960 dealt a body blow to China's economy and scientific research.

A statement by the central committee of the Chinese Communist party also said that Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung has denied that nuclear war would mean the end of civilization. The statement, together with an editor's note in the Peking People's Daily, was broadcast by the Communist New China News Agency and monitored here.

The broadcast charged Russia scrapped "hundreds" of Sino-Soviet agreements three years ago and "inflicted incalculable difficulties and losses on China's economy, national defence and scientific research."

But there was no specific reference as to whether the pullout of Russian technicians set back Communist China's quest for an atom bomb.

SCAP CONTENTS

New China said that in July, 1960, "The Soviet side suddenly notified China of its decision to withdraw all the 1,300 and more Soviet experts in China within a month, to scrap the hundreds of agreements and contracts it had signed and to discontinue supplies of many important items of equipment and materials."

In one of Red China's sharpest attacks on Russia to date, the broadcast charged that the Russian Communist party was trying to "poison" people's minds by saying Red China would have no scruples about spreading Communism through nuclear war.

The Chinese said China does not want nuclear war but is not afraid of it.

The broadcast, quoting the editor's note, said there were

Challenge to China

Take Dispute
To People
—Khrushchev

MOSCOW (AP)—Sputtering with rage over Red China's challenge to his leadership of the Communist camp, Premier Khrushchev dared Peking's leaders Friday to take their ideological dispute to the people.

"I declare to those who would like to overthrow us: I challenge you, gentlemen, comrades, let's pick out any plant or any collective farm," he said.

"You present your program and we will present our program. Let the people be the judge."

FOLITE PEOPLE

"And you may rest assured, you won't need armor or a pillow for protection... our people are polite here. They'll listen to you and say: 'Get out!'"

The Soviet premier flung down the challenge in an extemporaneous outburst at a Kremlin rally honoring visiting Hungarian Premier Janos Kadar.

FLAY CHINESE

He twice departed from his prepared text to flay his Chinese antagonists, groping for words in obvious vexation. At one point he spluttered to a halt searching for a word and appealed to the Kremlin Palace of Congresses audience: "Help me out, help me out."

New Tack
On Test
Proposals

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Khrushchev, in a proposal to back up a nuclear test ban, called Friday for an East-West non-aggression pact and a system of airfield and railroad inspections to prevent surprise attack.

While his negotiators and American and British representatives sorted out details of a partial test ban, the Soviet leader walked to the podium in the Kremlin's Congress Hall and made a series of proposals that seemed to point to an East-West summit conference.

He agreed the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union are approaching agreement on a nuclear test ban covering everything except underground explosions. He wants underground blasts covered too, he said, but he added that the West insists on inspections and implied those will not be approved.

TRIES NEW TACK

With the test ban he wanted a non-aggression pact, just as he said July 2 in East Berlin, but he clearly opened a new way to negotiations on that by saying:

"We think that the question of the form of the non-aggression pact can be solved without any great difficulties to the mutual satisfaction of both sides. The most important thing is not the form, but the content."

EASE TENSION

"The most important thing is for each side to display willingness to ease tensions and to liquidate the state of the cold war."

Baritone King leads 400 in filling woods with song.

400 Join Singing Safari

Sound of Music Fills Woods for Children

By DON GAIN

More than 400 persons, mostly children, made a singing safari into the Hudson's Bay woods near the corner of Henderson and Cedar Hill Cross Roads last night.

The group paused in a wooded glen, and as the sunlight dappled the dusty ground through maples, arbutus and fir, baritone Charles King broke into song.

The sound of music filled the woods as he led the singers in one spiritual after another.

For Children

Organizer of the safari, Mrs. W. W. McGill, former school board chairman, told this reporter the safari was not intended as a religious meeting.

A retired elementary school teacher and Sunday school teacher, Mrs. McGill said she was just interested in children.

"I always have been," she said.

She explained that Mr. King, the song leader, was a teacher of creative group singing in high schools all over the United States.

He and his wife, Allee, are visiting the McGills at their home on Mayfair Drive.

Mr. King was singing Water Boy in a pure baritone.

"Already the children have come to me and said, 'Let's do it again,'" Mrs. McGill said.

The baritone changed his song as the reporter made his way back through the dusty woods.

Little Girl Sings

"They just recently returned from a trip to Africa," said Mrs. McGill. "That's why I decided to call this a safari. They adopted two little girls while they were in Liberia."

The girls, Yvonne and Marie, were at the songfest last night. Yvonne sang The Angels Rolled the Stones Away in a loud clear voice. Then she sang a haunting little song in her native Liberian tongue.

Everyone Laughs

Marie, suffering from a cold, sang "Fishers of men" and when her voice cracked, the crowd laughed and so did Marie.

Mrs. King sang Were You There When They Crucified My Lord? in a sweet tremolo. "Come here, I want to show you something," Mrs. McGill told the reporter, leading the way to a nearby vacant lot on Henderson Street. She pointed to a car.

"That lady in the car with my husband is 88 years old. We brought her over from Rome Manor to hear the singing. It's Mrs. Barbara Dennis."

Work for Uplift

"We're working for uplift," she went on. "We just want to lift our hearts in true appreciation of the things we enjoy in this lovely country of freedom and plenty."

In the background the crowd was singing How Great Thou Art.

"A lot of things they teach children nowadays are just like so much water off a duck's back," she said. "But something like this they'll remember always."

Benefit Unbenefitted

French, U.S. Fleets
Dodge BB Weapon

PARIS — The French navy sadly admitted this week that it is not quite up to the task of taking care of Brigitte Bardot as the U.S. navy was asked to step in in the name of charity.

The National Union of Polio Victims started it all innocently enough with a request to use the French aircraft carrier Foch for a fund-raising party Aug. 2 off the Riviera port of Villefranche. Permission had been granted by Defence Minister Pierre Messmer until he learned that Miss Bardot was to be the feature attraction of the party.

"We promised 'Foch' for a benefit evening, not for the wild night that inevitably transpires around Brigitte Bardot," Messmer ungladly told the sponsors.

"The very presence of Miss Bardot and the excesses which are committed in the vicinity of her personage are strictly incompatible with the military secrecy which governs a large part of the ship," he added.

Gerard Vee, disappointed president of the polio group, then took his case through an intermediary to the U.S. Naval Attaché in Paris, Capt. John Noel, with the hope that ships," the captain said, not without a tinge of regret.

Vee, hastily calculating the prospects of luring charitable spenders to a non-alcoholic cocktail party, was even more regretful.

"Still, with the unusual atmosphere, and Miss Bardot, it might succeed," he said.

Capt. Noel was then constrained to add that there is no assurance that the USS Saratoga, the Enterprise or the Constitution—the three carriers presently anchored off Cannes—will be available at the desired time.

The ships of the Sixth Fleet are kept in constant motion and the special assignment of one, even for worthy causes, must be arranged months ahead.

Vee, after a quick check with the British Embassy, disclosed that no Royal Navy carriers are scheduled to be in the Mediterranean at the right date, is preparing a formal request to the U.S. government to cut the red tape.

RCAF Flies Out
Air Crash Survivor

PRINCE ALBERT (CP)—Gilbert Foster of Littleton, Colo., only survivor in the crash last Saturday of a private plane 300 miles north of here, was brought to Prince Albert Friday night.

Mr. Foster was pilot of a Cessna 310 aircraft that crashed-landed on Lac Haultain. Killed were his three passengers, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Miller of Grandby, Colo., and Ed Quick of Aurora, Colo.

Their bodies were brought to Prince Albert by the same RCAF Albatross aircraft that carried Mr. Foster to the northern Saskatchewan city.

GOOD CONDITION

RCMP said Mr. Foster appeared in good condition and was not admitted to hospital. However, he had said he was "busted" from his ordeal and would not talk to reporters at least until Sunday.

Mr. Foster told RCMP his plane survived the crash-landed but was damaged and was being towed to a nearby shore.

He said he had been forced to land with the wheels of his aircraft retracted. The craft was not properly equipped.

He did not say why he had been forced to land.

A coroner will rule Monday whether an inquest is necessary.

LONDON (AP)—A railroad conductor's alarm clock didn't go off Friday and thousands of commuters were late for work in the chain reaction that followed.

The conductor was first scheduled for the 5:43 a.m. train from Wimbledon to West Croydon. When he didn't show up the train was cancelled.

At West Croydon, he was supposed to take over the 6:23 to Victoria. That was cancelled.

At Victoria he was down for the 7:06 back to West Croydon. They called that one off, too.

Then at West Croydon he was assigned to the 7:35 to Holborn and that didn't run either.

The commuters involved got to work on other trains.

Slide Buries Man

FORT NELSON, B.C. (CP)—A rescue team decided Friday night against attempting to dig out a man buried when a truck was hit by a mudslide at a natural gas well 100 miles north of here.

A spokesman said the rescue operation might cause further slides and was too dangerous. A second man was thrown out of the vehicle before it was buried after a dirt road gave away. Names of the two were not released.

Helicopter Drops Lookout in Place

A prefabricated forest lookout building made B.C. history recently when a helicopter transported the parts onto a 4,407-foot mountain and lowered them into place.

A second record was established at the same time—the lookout was the highest of its kind in the province.

Plans for establishing a lookout on Tangle Mountain—near Nanaimo's famous ski resort paradise Green Mountain—had been pondered for some time at the insistence of Comox Logging Co., a subsidiary of Crown Zellerbach.

But inaccessibility of Tangle Mountain so far had prevented from planting a lookout on top of the mountain which provides the best view of Vancouver Island.

So the forest service decided on the experiment by flying in the lookout construction. This brings the number of lookouts on the island to 25.

Original idea was to fly in the building in one piece, but the pilot decided against it for fear it would prove too heavy for the helicopter. It was finally transported in two parts.

If the forest service decides the experiment was successful—and it appears to have been—then bigger and better lookouts will be transported to other inaccessible mountains.

Operation lookout drop lasted a whole day. First the lumber for the foundation was hoisted up, then the building, followed by equipment—including a garbage can.

Wind, updrafts and down-drafts combined to make the hauling by helicopter tricky, especially since rugged terrain on top of Tangle Mountain made landing impossible. The loads were dropped from a low altitude.

New officers of the Duncan Jaycees are: John Ellis, president; George Schmidt, first vice-president; Ken Ridenour, second vice-president; David Elise, secretary; Fred Walker, treasurer, and directors, Bob Berry and Bill Brown.

PORT ALBERNI — Fellow residents of Nanaimo may see Jaycee president Ron MacIsaac having his shoes polished on a downtown street of the Hub city.

Junior Chambers of Commerce of Nanaimo and Alberni districts, sponsors of Red Cross blood donor clinics in their respective areas, had wagers on the success of the operations.

When the two-day Port Alberni clinic closed the tally for this district was 515 pints. The quota was 600 pints.

Local Jaycees believe that the Nanaimo quota was the same.

If this is so, the 587 pints donated by Nanaimo area residents will win a shoe-shine for lawyer MacIsaac.

Miller Hepner, president of Alberni district Jaycees, is ready to perform.

'Bestial' Man Jailed

A man who was termed "morally bankrupt" by Crown Prosecutor T. P. O'Grady in city magistrate's court Friday was sentenced to two years less a day in Oakalla.

Before passing sentence on Stuart Duncan Robertson, 306 Wilmet Place, Magistrate William Ostler pointed out the accused's behavior was bestial and animal.

Robertson was sentenced on a morals charge which involved a 14-year-old girl. Magistrate Ostler pointed out it had been a difficult decision on whether to send the man to the penitentiary.

Accused of being drunk in a public place William Fisher called on a fellow prisoner to clear him of the charge but lost his case.

He called on Edgar L. Fenton, who earlier appeared on a charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident, to give evidence.

The court was told four men consumed a bottle of wine between them early Thursday. Fisher was picked up by police on Yates Street.

Questioned by Magistrate Ostler the men admitted no breakfast was eaten before they began drinking. They admitted drinking the bottle in a half hour.

Fisher was sentenced to 30 days as it was his third drinking offence.

Meat Strikers Seek Change in Injunction

Judgment has been reversed on an attempt to get the B.C. Supreme Court to alter an injunction it has granted against the striking union at the Alberta Meat Market.

Mr. Justice J. S. Atkins Friday heard several hours of argument by E. E. Pearlman, lawyer for the market, which sought the injunction, and Donald McTaggart of Vancouver, lawyer for the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America.

The union chiefly seeks the right to picket trucks of the meat market while the trucks are making pickups from suppliers or deliveries to customers.

The injunction will stay in effect until a judgment is handed down, probably early next week. It does not prohibit regular picketing of the market, but only certain activities.

Family Realizes Dream

By MARGARET TREBETT

PORT ALBERNI — From sub-chaser to luxury yacht is the story of a Fairmile owned by a working family of Port Alberni.

Tugboat Captain Robert Reynolds saw the possibilities in the 112-foot ship and purchased the Nancy Seymour, originally the RCN's Q 122, more than two years ago. Mrs. Reynolds and the couple's five sons and four daughters have shared his interest in renovating the vessel to meet the specifications of a family dream.

The Nancy Seymour will be re-registered as the Sogno D'Or, Italian for Golden Dream and two years of hard work are due to pay off in weekend and vacation travel for the sea-going family.

ECONOMY ADDED

Long before the Reynolds family acquired the ship, her high octane gasoline fuel tanks and high-speed engines had been replaced by tanks to hold 2,000 gallons of diesel fuel and the more economical Gray diesel 450 h.p. engines.

Cruising speed had been reduced to about 11 knots and the cost of operations cut to approximately $3 per hour.

With all but one of the Reynolds' family living in the area and taking a hand in the work, the ship was stripped to the deck. Below-deck accommodation was part of the renovation job, and the mahogany hull of double diagonal planking was scraped and repainted.

An 18 by 10-foot observation lounge, carpeted and furnished like a well-appointed living room, is a feature of the finished product. A roomy wheelhouse is equipped with radio-telephone and contains controls for the engine room.

The open deck canopy provides shelter for table, chairs and outdoor barbecue equipment.

The master's suite, with stateroom, bathroom and galleyette, is as tidy a bit of shipboard planning as one could find.

The main galley is reached by a stairway from the lounge and is 17 by 16 feet, accommodating a double sink, refrigerator, and many cupboards. The cook has a choice of two ranges, rockgas and oil and 10 people could sit at the long table. Three more state-rooms stretch forward, with room for showers and closet space.

The ship sleeps 14, but with hammocks or sleeping bags a small-sized army could be accommodated.

Ideal crew is three but Capt. and Mrs. Reynolds have managed it alone and the wheel-house engine controls make it possible for one person to operate the ship.

On Sunday, a day trip to Nettle Island in the Broken Group of Barkley Sound gave a sample of life aboard the vessel.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Guido Benesini, old friends of the Reynolds and now making their home in California. It was Mrs. Benesini who gave the Italian name for the family's dream ship.

Capt. Reynolds went to work on a tugboat on the B.C. coast when he was 14 years old, and his life has been spent in and around boats. Around 1919 he joined the CPB on an Alaska run and later, working for an American firm, he skippered a floating cannery.

Mrs. Reynolds was with him during their early married life when they fished up the coast as far as Alaska and lived for two years aboard their 33-foot seiner.

FAMILY HELPS

For the past 11 years, Capt. Reynolds has worked for the Stone Bros. Tug Co. here, and four of his sons, Jim, Bob, Tom and Jack are with the same firm, along with a son-in-law, Ron Gogo. Tom and Bob have captain's tickets.

The other son, George, who lives in Victoria, was just as interested in the project and all had special skills to help with the work. Mrs. Reynolds and her daughters, Mrs. Gogo, Yvonne and Margaret, had their share in the job and can take credit for a lot of painting, scrubbing and decorating.

Another daughter, Mrs. Ted Burton, lives on the Prairies. This year the family holiday will be spent in Barkley Sound and nearby waters, but plans are afoot for a cruise to Alaska. Additional water tanks are to be installed before this two-month jaunt is undertaken.

Gordon

Tax Talk With U.S. Promised

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Gordon said Friday the government plans to discuss with Washington Canada's "serious worries" about President Kennedy's proposed new tax on American purchases of securities from Canada and 21 other countries.

In a cautious statement, he told the Commons the situation resulting from the president's announcement Thursday of his tax proposal is "a little delicate."

But he added firmly: "I do not think it is too delicate. I think we will get out of it all right."

GOOD POSITION

Later he added: "The government is in an excellent position to negotiate with the United States."

Mr. Gordon entered the debate amid charges by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker that his June 13 budget measures may have provided a lead to the drastic Kennedy proposal.

HEDGES ON CHANGE

Mr. Diefenbaker, stating the new U.S. tax would affect Canada "to a tremendous degree," steered short of saying it resulted from the budget.

"What happened yesterday was an understandable consequence of the government's action in this budget . . . It gave

Solar Eclipse 12:16 See It Later on TV

A partial eclipse of the sun will begin in Victoria at 12:16 p.m., reach its peak at 1:38 p.m. and end at 2:50 p.m.

People who attempt to stare directly at the sun during the eclipse could be blinded. The use of exposed photographic film, camera viewfinders, binoculars, telescopes and smoked glasses is equally dangerous.

Safest way to watch—and probably the way that will give the best view of the rare phenomenon—is on television.

The eclipse will be shown over Channels 2 and 6 at 2:20 p.m., and over Channels 7 and 12 at 3 p.m.

"All five boxes?"

"Yes, sir."

Warncke said that should be punishment enough and put them on probation.

Russian Pull-Out Crippled Economy

BODY BLOW FOR CHINA

TOKYO (UPI)—Red China today coupled a new blast at Russian communists with the admission that the withdrawal of Soviet technicians in 1960 dealt a body blow to China's economy and scientific research.

A statement by the central committee of the Chinese Communist party also said that Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung has denied that nuclear war would mean the end of civilization. The statement, together with an editor's note in the Peking People's Daily, was broadcast by the Communist New China News Agency and monitored here.

The broadcast charged Russia scrapped "hundreds" of Sino-Soviet agreements three years ago and "inflicted incalculable difficulties and losses on China's economy, national defence and scientific research."

But there was no specific reference as to whether the pullout of Russian technicians set back Communist China's quest for an atom bomb.

SCRAP CONTENTS

New China said that in July, 1960, "The Soviet side suddenly notified China of its decision to withdraw all the 1,300 and more Soviet experts in China within a month, to scrap the hundreds of agreements and contracts it had signed and to discontinue supplies of many important items of equipment and materials."

In one of Red China's sharpest attacks on Russia to date, the broadcast charged that the Russian Communist party was trying to "poison" people's minds by saying Red China would have not scrupled about spreading Communism through nuclear war.

The Chinese said China does not want nuclear war but is not afraid of it.

The broadcast, quoting the editor's note, said there were

Challenge to China

Take Dispute To People —Khrushchev

MOSCOW (AP)—Sputtering with rage over Red China's challenge to his leadership of the Communist camp, Premier Khrushchev dared Peking's leaders Friday to take their ideological dispute to the people.

"I declare to those who would like to overthrow us: I challenge you, gentlemen, comrades, let's pick out any plant or any collective farm," he said.

"You present your program and we will present our program. Let the people be the judge."

POLITE PEOPLE

"And you may rest assured, you won't need armor or a pillow for protection . . . our people are polite here. They'll listen to you and say: 'Get out!'"

The Soviet premier flung down the challenge in an extemporaneous outburst at a Kremlin rally honoring visiting Hungarian Premier Janos Kadar.

FLAY CHINESE

He twice departed from his prepared text to flay his Chinese antagonists, groping for words in obvious vexation. At one point he spluttered to a halt searching for a word and appealed to the Kremlin Palace of Congresses audience: "Help me out, help me out."

New Tack On Test Proposals

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Khrushchev, in a proposal to back up a nuclear test ban, called Friday for an East-West non-aggression pact and a system of airfield and railroad inspections to prevent surprise attack.

While his negotiators and American and British representatives sorted out details of a partial test ban, the Soviet leader walked to the podium in the Kremlin's Congress Hall and made a series of proposals that seemed to point to an East-West summit conference.

He agreed the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union are approaching agreement on a nuclear test ban covering everything except underground explosions. He wants underground blasts covered too, he said, but he added that the West insists on inspections and implied those will not be approved.

TRIER NEW TACK

With the test ban, he wanted a non-aggression pact, just as he said July 2 in East Berlin, but he clearly opened a new way to negotiations on that by saying:

"We think that the question of the form of the non-aggression pact can be solved without any great difficulties to the mutual satisfaction of both sides. The most important thing is not the form, but the content."

EASE TENSION

"The most important thing is for each side to display willingness to ease tensions and to liquidate the state of the cold war."

Baritone King leads 400 in filling woods with song.

400 Join Singing Safari

It Was One Heart-Lifting Spiritual After Another

By DON GAIN

More than 400 persons, mostly children, made a singing safari into the Hudson's Bay woods near the corner of Henderson and Cedar Hill Cross Roads last night.

The group paused in a wooded glen, and as the sunlight dappled the dusty ground through maples, arbutus and fir, baritone Charles King broke into song.

The sound of music filled the woods as he led the singers in one spiritual after another.

For Children

Organizer of the safari, Mrs. W. W. McGill, former school board chairman, told this reporter the safari was not intended as a religious meeting.

A retired elementary school teacher and Sunday school teacher, Mrs. McGill said she was just interested in children.

"I always have been," she said. She explained that Mr. King, the song leader, was a teacher of creative group singing in high schools all over the United States.

He and his wife, Alice, are visiting the McGills at their home on Mayfair Drive.

Mr. King was singing Water Boy in a pure baritone.

"Already the children have come to me and said, 'Let's do it again,'" Mrs. McGill said.

The Chinese said China does not want nuclear war but is not afraid of it.

The broadcast, quoting the editor's note, said there were

Little Girl Sings

"They just recently returned from a trip to Africa," said Mrs. McGill. "That's why I decided to call this a safari. They adopted two little girls while they were in Liberia."

The girls, Yvonne and Marie, were at the songfest last night.

Yvonne sang The Angels Rolled the Stones Away in a loud clear voice. Then she sang a haunting little song in her native Liberian tongue.

Everyone Laughs

Marie, suffering from a cold, sang "Fishers of men" and when her voice cracked, the crowd laughed and so did Marie.

Mrs. King sang Were You There When They Crucified My Lord? in a sweet tremolo.

"Come here, I want to show you something," Mrs. McGill told the reporter, leading the way to a nearby vacant lot on Henderson Street. She pointed to a car.

"That lady in the car with my husband is 88 years old. We brought her over from Rose Manor to hear the singing. It's Mrs. Barbara Dennis."

Work for Uplift

"We're working for uplift," she went on. "We just want to lift our hearts in true appreciation of the things we enjoy in this lovely country of freedom and plenty."

In the background the crowd was singing How Great Thou Art.

A lot of things they teach children nowadays are just like so much water off a duck's back," she said. "But something like this they'll remember always."

Survivor of Air Crash Flown Out by RCAF

PRINCE ALBERT (CP)—Gilbert Foster of Littleton, Colo., only survivor in the crash last Saturday of a private plane 300 miles north of here, was brought to Prince Albert Friday night.

Mr. Foster was pilot of a Cessna 310 aircraft that crashed on Lac Haultain. Killed were his three passengers, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Miller of Grandby, Colo., and Ed Quick of Aurora, Colo.

Their bodies were brought to Prince Albert by the same RCAF Albatross aircraft that carried Mr. Foster to the northern Saskatchewan city.

GOOD CONDITION

RCMP said Mr. Foster appeared in good condition and was not admitted to hospital. However, he had said he was "bushed" from his ordeal and would not talk to reporters at least until Sunday.

Mr. Foster told RCMP his passengers survived the crash landing but drowned as they were swimming to a nearby shore.

He said he had been forced to land with the wheels of his aircraft retracted. The craft was not pontoon equipped.

He did not say why he had been forced to land.

A coroner will rule Monday whether an inquest is necessary.

Benefit Unbenefitted

French, U.S. Fleets Dodge BB Weapon

PARIS — The French navy sadly admitted this week that it is not quite up to the task of taking care of Brigitte Bardot as the U.S. navy was asked to step in in the name of charity.

The National Union of Polio Victims started it all innocently enough with a request to use the French aircraft carrier Foch for a fund-raising party Aug. 2 off the Riviera port of Villefranche. Permission had been granted by Defence Minister Pierre Messmer until he learned that Miss Bardot was to be the feature attraction of the party.

"We promised Foch for a benefit evening, not for the wild night that inevitably transpires around Brigitte Bardot," Messmer ungraciously told the sponsors.

"The very presence of Miss Bardot and the excesses which are committed in the vicinity of her personage are strictly incompatible with the military secrecy which governs a large part of the ship," he added.

Gerard Voo, disappointed president of the polio group, then took his case through an intermediary to the U.S. Naval Attache in Paris, Capt. John Noel, with the hope that one of the carriers of the U.S. Sixth Fleet might be used. Noel appeared ready to risk the impact of Miss Bardot on security but pointed out a possibly more serious obstacle.

"No alcoholic beverages can be served aboard U.S. Navy ships," the captain said, not without a tinge of regret.

Vee, hastily calculating the prospects of luring charitable spenders to a non-alcoholic cocktail party, was even more regretful.

"Still, with the unusual atmosphere, and Miss Bardot, it might succeed," he said.

SHIP NOEL

Capt. Noel was then constrained to add that there is no assurance that the USS Saratoga, the Enterprise or the Constitution—the three carriers presently anchored off Cannes—will be available at the desired time.

The ships of the Sixth Fleet are kept in constant motion and the special assignment of one, even for worthy causes, must be arranged months ahead.

VEE'S CHECK

Vee, after a quick check with the British Embassy, disclosed that no Royal Navy carriers are scheduled to be in the Mediterranean at the right date, is preparing a formal request to the U.S. government to cut the red tape.

"It's our only hope," he said.
